CLARKE OF THE OLD SUN
WHAT WILL BIG STEEL DO?
LADY OF OLD AUSTRALIA

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright 1930 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Selah Merrill Clarke died Sunday in his 80th year. S. S. Carvalho, a first-class newspaperman and publisher, who knew Clarke better than any of his surviving associates, said of him yesterday: "Clarke was the greatest man, from the news point of view, that ever lived."

This writer, as a reporter on a Charles A. Dana's New York Sun, knew Clarke, then night editor, a thin, concentrated, red-haired New England type of man, not unlike Morrill Goddard of the American Weekly.

A young reporter having solemnly prepared some erudite, convincing and important article, half news, half editorial, would hand it to Clarke only to see it drop in the waste basket as he returned to his seat, with Clarke scribbling three or four lines that contained all the news of the article, plus good writing.

The opening of a national convention chanced to follow Clarke's day off. Several men, Julian Ralph, Odion, half a dozen other good writers and copy readers, sat at a long table comparing notes and dispatches from correspondents and news agencies. Next day Clarke returned, sat in his corner, lit his clay pipe and admirably without help did the work that the half dozen had done, making one perfect running story of all the day's news.

Clarke, a great man in the newspaper world, wanted neither praise nor gratitude. He deserves both from many, taught by him, including this writer.

What will big steel do at today's meeting?

That question interests everybody in Wall Street, everybody concerned with stock prices, and more important things out of Wall Street.

Will United States Steel reduce its dividend at today's meeting probably.

Will any step be taken toward reducing wages today? Probably not. Dividend and wage reduction at once would be too much of a shock for Washington and "the street."

After dividend reduction it may seem reasonable to say "Capital has taken its medicine and labor should do so." That will not seem convincing to labor.

A dividend reduction to 5 per cent will not be taken seriously by any but "jumpy" stock speculators.

Steel sold as low as 89 1/2 yesterday and closed 92 1/2.

Leaving out past performances, 5 per cent is a good return on a stock at that price.

Those who sell and are able to hold will regret it and bang their heads on the bedpost when good times come back.

Mr. Lamont, secretary of commerce, says corporations hit hard can not reasonably be asked to refrain from wage cuts. It needs no ghost to come from the grave to tell you that a man who hasn't the money to meet the payroll can't meet it.

It was a sad, slow day in Wall Street, by a way, although money for speculation cost only 1 1/2 per cent a year. The poor brokers sold only 600,000 shares of stock. Some will sell their seats, cheap, and they, too, will bang their heads on

PENNSYLVANIA GETS ELLIOTT

Governor Grants Extradition Papers To Man Held at Lisbon

LISBON, July 28.—C. S. Elliott, 32, of Center County, Pa., was being taken to Pennsylvania today to face charges of breaking, entering, larceny and malicious mischief, following a hearing held today in the court of Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones.

Elliott identified Bodin, chief of detectives in Center county after extradition papers were granted late Monday by Governor George White. Positive identification of the man as C. S. Elliott, named as a fugitive from justice in a warrant filed by Bodin, was made in today's hearing.

Elliott was arrested three weeks ago near Hammondville by Jefferson county authorities at the request of Sheriff W. J. Barlow. Barlow had been asked to make the arrest by Center county officials who filed the four charges against Elliott.

A hearing on the fugitive from justice warrant was held in the court of Justice of Peace M. K. Zimmerman following which habeas corpus proceedings were filed, asking Elliott's release, by Attorneys W. R. Alban and J. S. Kimble of Steubenville. The writ was denied by Judge Louis T. Farr who presided in the case in the absence of Judge Lones.

Extradition was granted by Governor White yesterday, the hearing in Judge Lones' court following today. Positive identification of Elliott was made by D. T. Kessler, Bellfonte, Pa., for whom Elliott worked at one time.

Pythians To Hold Picnic On Aug. 20

An invitation to join with the Struthers lodge in a picnic on Thursday, August 20, was accepted by Salem Knights of Pythias at their meeting in lodge hall, North Broadway, Monday night.

The lodge also arranged plans for a dance which will be held at the hall next Saturday night. Don Robinson orchestra, Alliance, will play.

STEEL TO DROP DIVIDEND RATE FROM $7 TO $5

Corporation Directors to Act at Meeting This Afternoon

WAGES WILL NOT BE DISCUSSED—REPORT

Can Have Earned Little On Common Stock, Observers Agree

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, July 28.—Directors of the United States steel corporation—long regarded in Wall street as one of the world's premier industrial institutions—today faced one of their most difficult meetings in the corporation's 30-year history.

Directors convene at 3 o'clock to receive the quarterly earnings statement and act on the quarterly dividend.

It has been a source of considerable gratification to Wall street that the steel corporation has been fit to maintain its boom time common dividend rate of $7 a share, annually, thus far into the depression.

A reduction in the annual rate to $5 a share has been forecast in well-informed financial quarters during the past day or two.

It has been widely rumored that a reduction in the dividend would be a step preliminary to wage reduction, but it was learned on good authority no discussion of wages has been planned for today's meeting.

It has been generally accepted among Wall street observers that the steel corporation can have earned little or nothing on its common stock during the second quarter of the year. Some estimates indicate earnings from operations may have fallen short of the preferred dividend requirements in the past quarter.

At the current dividend rate it costs the corporation roughly $15,200,000 to make a quarterly payment on the common stock. For the last quarter of this year, and the first quarter of this, some $24,000,000 was taken from surplus to maintain the dividend rate. Even if the rate is reduced to $5 annually, Wall street feels further inroads into surplus will be required during the remainder of the year. Although cash and securities as shown in the latest balance sheet totaled $197,000,000, it is said in well-informed quarters the management feels that item should never be permitted to fall below $100,000,000.

Those who sell and are able to hold will regret it and bang their heads on the bedpost when good times come back.

CITY APPROVES MATHEWS' DRIVE

"Dare-Devil, Jr." To Begin 100-Hour Trip This Afternoon

Official approval of the proposed 100-hour endurance trip planned by Fred "Dare Devil" Mathews, Jr., here starting this afternoon, was given this morning by Mayor J. M. Davidson and Police Chief T. W. Thompson.

A member of the police department is to shackle Mathews to the wheel of a new free-wheeling Plymouth automobile. The drive will start in front of The Salem Publishing company building at 3 p. m. today. Mathews proposes to end the drive at 7 p. m. Saturday.

BEGG ADDRESSES COUNTY WOMEN

Former Congressman Will Speak at Public Meeting at Centennial Park; Guest of Club

Former Congressman James T. Begg of Cleveland addressed a gathering of more than 90 Columbiana county Republican women at a meeting at the Arrowhead Inn, south of Salem, this afternoon.

Begg will be the speaker at a public rally which will be held at 8 tonight at Centennial park. He will also be the guest of the Salem Rotary club at a 6 o'clock dinner at the Quaker Teahouse, Jennings ave.

Republican candidates for nomination at the August primaries will give short talks at the Centennial park meeting.

Priest Transferred

GALLIPOLIS, July 28.—After serving three years as pastor of the St. Louis Catholic church here, Rev. Father William Dowd has announced his transfer to Athens to succeed Rev. Father Connolly who goes to Portsmouth.

Injuries Are Fatal

CINCINNATI, July 28.—Injuries sustained when his car left the road near Harrison Sunday resulted in death of George McAdams, 54, Lawrenceburg, Ind., plumber. His wife, Emma, 49, died Sunday night from injuries received in the crash.

PRESIDENT IS FIRM ON PAY POLICY

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 28.—Secretary Doak said today that the policy of the administration in opposing wage cuts remained "absolutely unchanged."

The labor secretary said the Hoover administration "has not and will not condone such wage cuts as has been made."

Doak made his statement as he left the cabinet room but said the matter had not been discussed by the cabinet.

He declined to discuss the letter of Secretary Lamont made public Saturday.

The Lamont letter was written to Representative Condon of Rhode Island who had called the attention of President Hoover to wage cuts in the textile industry in his state and asking that some action be taken.

Answering the letter which the President had turned over to him, Lamont said that as the period of depression lengthens "many corporations which were not well protected by reserves accumulated in years of good business find themselves at the present time in extremely difficult positions."

Some of them are faced with the prospect of closing down altogether and thus creating more unemployment, or alternately, seeking temporary wage reductions.

EAST PALESTINE THEATER PLANS SUNDAY MOVIES

Playhouse Opens Aug. 2; Clerk Gets Petitions In E. Liverpool

EAST PALESTINE, July 28.—Sunday theater entertainment will be offered to East Palestine residents for the first time August 2, the date when the new Ohio law, legalizing Sabbath day theatricals, becomes effective.

Abe Cohen, manager of the East Palestine Theater, announced today that the playhouse will be opened for a matinee and two evening performances Sunday.

No organized opposition to Sunday movies has yet been offered, city officials said, although several church leaders have definitely gone on record as opposing the move.

The city has no ordinance declaring Sunday movies illegal.

FIGHT SUNDAY SHOWS

East Liverpool Theater Opening Meets With Opposition

EAST LIVERPOOL, July 28.—Petitions bearing 1,600 signatures of East Liverpool residents, seeking an initiative vote on an ordinance proposed to halt Sunday movies, were filed with the clerk of city council here today.

The petitions will be filed with John W. Moore, clerk of the county board of elections, who will arrange plans for presentation of the ordinance before the city's voters at the November 3 election.

All theaters will be thrown open to the public Sunday, managers of playhouses said today.

The fight against Sunday movies is being led by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church, and R. W. Sample, retired shoe dealer, president and secretary, respectively, of the East Liverpool Sunday Observance association.

TWO PLANES TAKE OFF, ONE FOR TURKEY, ONE FOR MOSCOW

Lindy, Wife Head For Maine On Second Lap Of Orient Hop

Will Bid Goodbye There to Their Son, and Senator and Mrs. Dwight Morrow; Guests at Dinner of Acting Secretary of State Castle

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 28.—Col and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today planned to take off on their second lap of their vacation flight to the Orient.

The first hop brought the distinguished aviation couple to Washington yesterday from New York. The second will take them to North Haven, Me., where they will bid goodbye to their son, and Senator and Mrs. Dwight Morrow.

Guests of Secretary Castle. Last night they were guests at dinner of acting Secretary Castle of the state department. Other guests included members of the Far Eastern division of the state department and the evening was spent discussing conditions the fliers might encounter.

Lindbergh said he did not expect to take off from the Anacostia river, where his trim black airplane is moored near the mail air station, until about noon today. All night the pontoon equipped craft was guarded by bluejackets as it rolled in the rays of a strong searchlight.

Complete emergency equipment is carried on the plane, besides the regular luggage, including fur coats for the cold arctic air the Lindberghs will find in northern Canada and Alaska. The aircraft has blankets, a stove and emergency rations neatly packed in its graceful fuselage.

Although the plane has a capacity of 536 gallons of gasoline, Lindbergh said 350 gallons would be the maximum load. He estimated that his longest hop would be 200 miles.

Gets Japanese Visas

Lindbergh, after leaving the residence of acting Secretary Castle, where he and Mrs. Lindbergh spent the night, went to the Japanese embassy and received visas for visiting Japan.

He previously had received permission to fly his plane over Japan. Later Lindbergh expected to go to the Anacostia naval station to give his plane final inspection. He still was undecided whether he would leave today or early tomorrow.

MAGIC THRILLS FIRST THRONGS AT CHAUTAUQUA

Miss Doris Brown Organizes Junior Group; Plans Program

The chautauqua season in Salem opened auspiciously this afternoon when the first program was presented to crowds that almost filled the huge tent on the Columbia school grounds on South Lundy ave.

Magic and mystery reigned supreme at the big tent this afternoon as the master magician, Edward Reno, took a large tentful of young folks and adults on a trip to magic land.

Van Baricome Speaks

S. N. Van Baricome, on behalf of the local committee, made the opening speech this afternoon, briefly reviewing what had been done and the aims and purposes for the future. Mr. Van Baricome introduced the chautauqua superintendent, R. W. Sharpe, who gave a brief sketch of the program for the week. "Every day will be a big day," announced Mr. Sharpe.

Immediately at the close of the program this afternoon the boys and girls of Junior chautauqua met with the junior director, Miss Dore Brown, who will remain throughout the chautauqua in charge of the programs for the boys and girls.

Miss Brown told the boys and girls of the program of activities she has mapped out. These will include games, stunts, story telling and a complete program given by the children on the stage on the last day of chautauqua as a climax.

Miss Brown is a young lady of wide experience as a child entertainer and in the direction of children's programs and is considered the most competent junior supervisor on the Redpath staff.

Comedy Tonight

Tonight the six-day series of events continues with the great American comedy, "Broken Dishes," which will be presented by an all-New York cast, each a star and an artist. It is said that American family life finds, to a great degree, its reflection in this play—and laughs heartily and wholesomely at itself.

Outstanding musical events of the week are announced as the Metropolitan Singers who will present the delightful musical comedy, "The Violin Maker of Cremona" on the fourth afternoon, and the Philharmonic orchestra. The latter company is said to be one of the finest orchestras ever presented on Chautauqua.

Man Socks Wife In Akron Court; Socker Socked by Sergeant

AKRON, O., July 28.—Municipal court was thrown into disorder today when 200-pound Max Rosen, 29, delivered a knockout blow to the jaw of his divorced wife, 34, and was subdued with difficulty.

Mrs. Rosen crumpled to the floor, unconscious, and with blood dripping from her mouth and nose, Police Sergeant Fred Vierick immediately slugged Rosen and Jailer Wade Stitzler succeeded in locking the man's arms behind him and subduing him.

Mrs. Rosen was sent to a hospital where she regained consciousness. An additional warrant for assault and battery was filed against Rosen. The original charge which brought him into court was disorderly conduct and was based on his alleged invasion of his ex-wife's hotel room Monday night.

DRIVE WORKERS ARE APPOINTED

P. C. Hawk to Direct East Palestine Community Fund Canvass

EAST PALESTINE, July 28.—P. C. Hawk was appointed chairman of the East Palestine community chest fund campaign, planned here during the coming winter, at a meeting of civic leaders at the office of Arthur Johnson Monday night.

Chairman J. M. Cooley was elected vice chairman while Johnson was named secretary and J. C. Chamberlain was appointed treasurer. Heads of committees, named at last night's session, are:

Budget—Mrs. Abe Cohen; finance—R. G. Sutherland; relief work—Henry Lober; publicity—C. E. Oliver; employment—Hugh Meek.

The campaign will be launched in the early part of the winter, it being proposed to raise sufficient funds to enable all charitable organizations to conduct relief work and render aid to the city's poor and needy without further collections from the public.

Hawk, East Palestine hardware dealer, prominent in civic affairs, is expected to call another meeting early in August when members of the five committees will be named. Plans for the campaign were organized at a meeting of 12 of the city's leading residents early this month.

Receiver Is Asked

MANSFIELD, July 28.—Appointment of a receiver was asked by H. F. Madden and Harry T. Cousins, sponsors of the air races held here last week, to handle receipts and creditors' accounts after receipts fell short of expenses.

Accused of Robbery

VAN WERT, July 28.—Charged with robbing the City Loan and Savings company safe here July 19, Bert Montague, auto salesman, was held, while Don Atha, assistant loan manager, was released on $1,000 bond on the same charge.

HEAT IS FATAL TO CANTON MAN

William Harmon Dies Suddenly As He Is Picking Berries With Grandson on Farm

CANTON, July 28.—William W. Harmon, 67, of this city, died late yesterday afternoon while he and his grandson, Charles Harmon, were picking berries on the Swartz farm near here. The elder Harmon had complained of the heat and his grandson ran to get water and aid. By the time he returned his grandfather was dead.

Mr. Harmon was born in Tuscarawas county but had lived in Canton for 30 years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emma Harmon; two sons, Ross Harmon of Portsmouth and John Harmon of Canton; two daughters, Mrs. Grace Waldman and Mrs. Lenert Smith of Canton; two grandchildren and a brother, Thomas Harmon.

Funeral service will be held Thursday at 1:30 p. m. at the home here and 2 p. m. in First Christian church, Rev. P. H. Welsher in charge.

TURKEY IS GOAL OF FIRST; OTHER OFF TO MOSCOW

Russel Boardman and John Polando Heading For Istanbul

WEATHER IDEAL FOR OCEAN TRIP

Hugh Herndon, Clyde Pangborn Plan Round-World Journey

(By Associated Press)
FLOYD BENNETT AIRPORT, NEW YORK, July 28.—Two powerful monoplane took off within 18 minutes of each other on non-stop trans-Atlantic flights today.

The Belanca monoplane "Cape Cod" manned by Russell Boardman of Boston and John Polando of Lynn, Mass., rolled down the runway at exactly 5 a. m. eastern standard time and skimmed away at an altitude of not more than 60 feet until it was lost to sight. They are heading for Istanbul, Turkey, about 5,400 miles away.

The second plane to take off was that of Hugh Herndon, Jr., former Princeton student, and Clyde Pangborn, veteran circus flier. They rolled away at 5:18 a. m. Eastern standard time, on an intended flight around the world with Moscow, 5,400 miles away, as their first objective.

Weather Ideal

Weather conditions across the entire Atlantic were described as ideal for the flights by Dr. James S. Kimball, government meteorologist and unofficial starter.

Field officials feared the Boardman-Palando plane might meet with difficulties because of its great weight. It carried 718 gallons of gasoline and 25 gallons of oil, sufficient fuel to keep it going 7,000 miles if necessary. It is propelled by a 300-horsepower Wright engine.

The plane has yellow wings with black trimmings, and a black and white fuselage with words "Cape Cod" painted in blue.

They hope to eclipse the present long-distance record set by Caste and Le Brix, who flew 4,912 miles non-stop.

Herndon and Pangborn's red monoplane has a 500-horsepower motor and is capable of cruising at 125 miles an hour. It carries 830 gallons of gasoline, enough for 5,500 miles without a halt.

JURY TO PROBE FATAL SHOOTING

Death of George McPeck Under Investigation In Stark County

The fatal shooting of George McPeck, 44, one of four men wounded in a gun battle three weeks ago with chicken thieves on the George Wallace farm, west of Homeworth, is being investigated today by the Stark county grand jury.

The grand jurors will consider homicide charges filed against Ernest Tinker, 36, and William Reese, 35, both of Alliance, two of the three negroes accused of stealing chickens from the Wallace farm. Their companion, John Johnson, also of Alliance, succumbed to wounds received in the battle.

George Wallace, who is still in the hospital, is somewhat improved although only members of the family are being admitted to his room. He was shot through the lung. His son, Olen, was wounded in the wrist.

Police Chief Harry L. Stark was summoned to appear before the grand jury.

Overestimated

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 28.—Lots of counting and breaking the monotony of their depressions with little home talent revolutions.

A big amateur dictator in Chile had said "Nothing could harm me; I am under divine protection."

Well, yesterday the bullets got to getting so close he commenced figuring maybe he had kinder overestimated his partnership with the Almighty.

There is no leaders in any country now that look like breaking are getting any divine aid.

Did you read about some women getting held up in China? Well, they was the female kin folks of Harry Carr, the best writer on the coast. He wrote an awful nice piece sympathizing with the bandits.

ANOTHER REPORT

The Wickersham commission delivers another report into the hands of the public and retires again into austere anonymity. The commission, long since disbanded, still retains a shadowy identity through its posthumous reports.

The latest one deals with "penal institutions, probation and parole."
It condemns the nation's prison system with an array of evidence as startling to America's conscience as that which disturbed the nation's mug complacency recently when the commission disclosed that children were being maltreated in federal prisons.

One wonders, irreverently perhaps, what will become of the Wickersham commission's reports.
What effect will they have on bettering the admittedly bad state of law and order in the United States?

The effect of the most important of the commission's reports, that dealing with the enforceability of prohibition, was negated at the outset by an inexcusable attempt to hide its purport. The real conclusion of the report, furthermore, stated little that Americans did not already know.

The commission has reported on a number of things since then, each report presenting valuable collections of figures and opinions that might be used for the common good of all. But will they? There is no provision to translate the commission's recommendations into action. Prison discipline is "traditional, antiquated, unintelligent and not infrequently cruel and inhuman", the latest report reads. The public knows that, has done very little about it, and probably won't care to do more long after the Wickersham commission is a cold phrase in a history book.

There is, however, a great deal to be said for the idea of grouping the opinions of distinguished citizens in reports prepared under government direction, and containing stores of information collected at government expense. The Wickersham commission at least has given the people something to refer to for support of their beliefs, even if the recommendations do seem destined to lie forgotten in storage.

What Others Say

A CHINESE FANTASY

Many nations have gone to war for no reason other than to prevent internal dissension. But none of them has had the devastating casualties of the Chinese Nationalist government at Nanking, which proposes to the rebel government at Canton that they join in a common war against Japan—solely to dispel frictions within China.

Very possibly the accounts of the proposals of Nanking are a trifle exaggerated. Europe many times has heard the call to unite more closely, so as to face the rest of the world more effectively. Italy and Russia employ the device constantly of citing dangers from enemies abroad, the better to consolidate their own populations. Trying the same psychological technic, China has been overzealous, and lays herself open to bad faith.

It might be best to disregard completely this fantasy of the Chinese official mind. So often the Chinese have tried to imitate the political and economic methods of the West, and so frequently they have blundered in their application of Western formulae, we should by now be prepared to discount much of what is done at Nanking.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"No relief in sight" usually er. Why not try the prediction on depression?—Toledo Blade.

PARIS (By Mail)—As a point of chivalry I will concede French ladies are smartly dressed—although most so habited have escaped me. But I will megaphone from the top pinnacle of the Empire spire that the French gentleman is the worst dressed and generally the most untidy in the world.

I do not refer to the comic strip Frenchman with cone shaped silk hat and high heels, for he has almost vanished. I refer to the average man seen along the streets. The boulevards are a shifting confusion of smartly dressed gentlemen but they are seldom the local boys.

They are Englishmen, Americans and Latin Americans—the Peruvian Incidentally is one of the best dressed men in all Paris. It is the Peruvian of all the dandies who gives the proper flick to his full dress tie, the opulent blinding to his shirts and ties and a jaunty angle to his chapeaux.

Luza, the Peruvian fashion artist for American Magazines, is, by the way, considered one of Paris' most correctly groomed fashion plates.
Of all the exhibitions of bad taste in sartorial get-ups the Frenchman leads the parade. And about him is a comic gravity.

He wears a nubbins of a hat perched on his forehead in a la Webster's Casper Miquetost, lavender shaded pantaloon that strike above the ankles, coats of an 1880 vintage with midget lapels, high choke standing collars, a hook-on-bow tie and naturally the inevitable stubby umbrella lopped over his arm.

One hears much about the Parisian lady's chic, yet the stranger finds this quality expressed chiefly among the shop girls. It is proverbial that the great style designers of the capital came from the ranks of the midinettes—notably Chanel, one time needle girl and Schiaparelli, former package deliver.

Your French Dowager is usually a comic opera mess. She is ballooned with heavy silks from which dangle everything from a lognetto to a kiddie car and her face is splotted up for all the world like a circus clown. In other words, Parisians know how to dress everybody but themselves.

We taxied over to Tour d'Argent this evening to partake of one of Mons. Frederic's memorable numbered ducks and our palates were keenly whetted for this piece de resistance. But the iron shutters had been pulled down. This just happened to be an evening when the staff was indulging in a lay off.
Tour d'Argent, a historic place, is like that. If they serve you they serve you well but if they don't feel in the mood, they merely close up shop.

This is a pean for French pain.
Bread here is the tastiest in the world. It is small wonder natives can make a full meal solely off of it.
The tricycle bread boys may—and do—toss it with dirty hands to the equally dirty pavements, but that doesn't matter. It is still grand.
The other morning I saw a pile of it stacked like cord-wood in front of a pension on the avenue de lo Observatoire. I pulled my dog away.
But a Frenchman back of me was not so particular.

Nor do I think any breakfast bread equals the brioche and flakey croissant that comes with petit dejeuner each morning. To me it surpasses our corn pone and that is at least a reluctant, if not downright unpatriotic, admission.

Ray Long, Jr., burst out with a full blown set of mumps today, which will keep him indoors for a few days. But his indisposition gave me a chance to visit a French toy store and I came away with an armful of dingbats, but at the last moment held out a stereopticon of views of Paris. After all, at my age one has to have something to amuse one's self in Paris. You just can't dodder all the time.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

The Nation's Help to Children

Recently President Hoover inaugurated the first White House Conference on Child Health and Protection. This Conference was brought about after many months of careful planning and study by the leading specialists of the country.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Conference was unusual.
Never before has there been any such concrete program looking to improvement in the general health and condition of our young citizens.

At the opening of the Conference, President Hoover clearly stated the purpose of the gathering. He said that "the fundamental purpose of this Conference is to set forth an understanding of these safeguards which will assure to the child health in mind and body."

In his concluding report, Dr.
Ray Lyman Wilbur included twenty fundamental principles for child health and protection. Space does not permit me to recite all, but the following are important.

Every prospective mother should have suitable information and medical supervision during the prenatal period, competent care at confinement.

Every child should receive periodical health examinations before and during the school period.

Every child should have regular dental examinations and care. Every child should be protected from the "catching diseases." He is entitled to be protected from impure milk and food.

Every child should have proper sleeping rooms, diet, hours of sleep and play. The parents should receive expert information as to the needs of children in these matters.

Every child should attend a school which has proper seating, lighting, ventilation and sanitation.
For younger children, kindergartens and nursery schools should be provided to supplement home care.

At the next meeting of this energetic and competent group of scientists, more concrete steps in the program will undoubtedly be announced. In order that this campaign may be successful, it will require the cooperation of everyone.

It is not a job for the physician alone. All mothers and fathers must do their share.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of change or readjustment of the affairs, especially in regard to employment and finance. A child born on this day should be talented and ambitious but a over-weening ambition and want of thrift and prudence in handling its substance may prove detrimental.

SECRET PLACES

By Joan Sutherland

Synopsis of Preceding Installments:

Feodor Staire, attache of the British Embassy in Paris, had been sentenced to be hanged, after a sensational trial in London, for the murder in Paris of the wealthy Countess Henri D'Arblaye but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Ronald Halkett was Feodor's best friend and Ronald's wife Greta had been suspected. Feodor was engaged to Toni Wareham, Greta's younger sister and daughter of Lady Alice Wareham. Ronald's newspaper work demanded long hours and Greta had been much in the company of D'Arblaye. Toni asked Feodor to escort Greta home from a ball but she left with D'Arblaye. Toni followed and was outside D'Arblaye's apartment house when Greta came running out, saying she had shot D'Arblaye when he snatched her up and started to carry her into another room. She had forgotten her handbag. Feodor sent her home in a taxi, went back, wiped all fingerprints from the pistol, got the bag but was hailed by the concierge as he was leaving. Staire gave his name. Before his arrest he coached Greta by phone to say she had not entered D'Arblaye's apartment. When the heartbroken Toni returned to Paris after Feodor's trial, she consented to pose for a portrait by Paul Ravel, famous artist, to please her worried mother. Giga, Ravel's model for several noted paintings, almost convinced him of her belief that Greta was the murderer.

INSTALLMENT XXIV

A few days afterwards, rather to Toni's surprise, Ravel called her up to ask if she would go with him. In company with her sister and Gerald Astley, to the premiere of a play by one of the most popular writers of France. Toni's instinct was to refuse, but after all what did it matter—what did anything matter? She knew how an acceptance would please her mother, so she agreed.

She had met Mr. Astley, the owner of L'Etoile, once or twice before. He was an acquaintance of her mother's, and so was his wife, and he, of course, knew—as did all social Paris—of the tragedy that had overtaken Toni. He was very charming to her, as were the other two, and Toni did her best to respond.

"What is this play like?" Toni said during dinner. "I have heard nothing about it."

"I have not read it," Astley said. "It is quite a thrilling thing and, I believe, very clever. It is supposed to be amusing, too, which is unusual in a play that thrills."

The first act was quite amusing, but towards the end of the act Astley began to feel a little uneasy, for the play seemed heading for tragic development, and matters were not improved when for the second act the curtain went up upon a scene which immediately preceded the denouement of the play. It was quite unmistakable now that some kind of drama must be expected, and Toni at least began to find it a strain, but she was far too thoroughbred to show any distaste.

The scene was a drawing-room in the small hours, in the apartment of one of the chief characters of the play—a man-about-town of modern type—and the situation was created by a jealous woman and the young fiancée of the man in question. The girl had visited the man's rooms late, unknown to her parents, doing a thing which was unheard-of for the French jeune fille, and the other woman had arrived to see the young girl leaving in the early hours. There was a scene between the two women, dramatic and brilliantly written, and then, contrary to the expectations of the audience, the jealous woman let the young girl go, and the curtain fell, when everybody had been keyed up to expect some kind of tragedy.

"Would you care to come out?" Ravel said to Toni. "It is very stuffy in here," and Toni accepted, and leaving the other two, they made their way to the parterre and walked up and down, watching the crowd, talking very little; Ravel was too absorbed in the plot he had laid, and too ashamed of himself for laying it, to feel in a very good mood for conversation.

The final curtain rewarded Ravel for his plotting. The heroine shot her seduced through the heart; the report of the pistol and Greta's stifled cry came almost at the same instant. Toni glanced at her sharply, but Ravel was first. Touching her arm, he leaned forward.

"It startled you, May I take you out?" he said. "You look very white."

Greta was in truth as white as a sheet. She shook her head and began to applaud vigorously.

"No—no, it is nothing," Her voice was sharp, almost angry. "But I hate shots on the stage. I hate being startled."

Astley had not noticed her discomposure. Only Toni and Ravel had seen what a painful impression the revolver shot had made upon her, and Toni felt the ache in her heart strengthen and deepen. Greta's nerves should not be set out of control—the occurrence was painful in the thoughts it aroused, but there was no time for any dissection of feeling now. There was a general movement as the theater emptied, and when they got outside, Astley, entirely unconscious of the incident, turned to Ravel's guests.

"Supposing we go on and dance somewhere?" he said. "It's quite early. You don't want to go home yet, do you?"

And Toni, afraid to be alone, said quickly: "Oh, I'd love it! Yes, do let's, and was conscious that Ravel looked at her swiftly.

Ravel—why did he look at her like that? Her nerves were beginning to play her tricks again. She must get hold of herself—must hide her real feelings—must hide this new ghastly horror which was creeping into her, but for the rest of the evening she was hardly conscious of what she said or did.

They went to some well-known dancing club. She avoided dancing with Ravel till nearly the end of the evening, and then could avoid it no longer and found herself alone with him. Rather to her surprise—if she had not passed beyond surprise—he spoke, quickly, directly he joined her.

"Should you mind very much, Mademoiselle Toni, if we didn't dance? If I had not been one of a party I should have refused to come, for I have got that very unromantic complaint—rheumatism in my left knee."

"I don't want to dance particularly," Toni said. "I have danced enough. We had better go home soon, I think, unless Greta wants to stay on."

"I think your sister is enjoying herself," Ravel said with elaborate carelessness. "Mademoiselle Toni, I am sorry that play was what it was tonight. I had no idea of it. You must excuse my stupidity and clumsiness."

There was such real kindness and vexation in his voice that Toni looked up at him swiftly.

"Why, of course," she said, with a return of something of her old spirit. "I knew you knew nothing about it. Besides, I suppose we must get used to it."

"But there is no need that your friends should make it harder," Ravel said. "I am sorry, little Mademoiselle Toni, but your sister, she was very upset, was she not? Has she worried very much about her?"

share in this most unjust affair?"

He worded his sentence deliberately and Toni felt into the trap. He saw her start, saw her eyes dilate, saw even the faint color that was there fade out of her cheeks.

"Her share?" she echoed. "Monsieur Ravel, what do you mean?" and then could have bitten her tongue out at the way the question sounded.

Ravel shrugged his shoulders.

"She naturally felt that she had been to blame," he said. "After all, but for her forgetting her bag, the whole wretched affair would never have touched Monsieur Staire at all."

He saw Toni's tense body relax. "No, of course not," she said. "I had forgotten that. I am rather stupid, these days; you must forgive me."

"You are not stupid, you are tired," Mademoiselle Toni, he said. "When do you come to finish the painting? After that you shall go away South and rest."

"I am so tired of the South," Toni said wearily. "I would rather be at home just now. I don't want to do things much. I'm tired all the time."

"But you are not looking well, Mademoiselle Toni," Ravel said slowly. Are you well?"

"Well?" she echoed in a low voice that vibrated strangely. "Could you expect me to be well? Do you think for one moment I could forget—that I could have forgotten Feodor? You are a painter; you see, perhaps, through people's faces to their souls. Monsieur Ravel, if you see my soul, and I think you do, you know better."

He then leaned across the little table and laid his hand on Toni's bare arm.

"Yes, I see souls, Mademoiselle," he said gravely. "Sometimes I see more of them than I want. You must never blame me for that. If ever that vision of mine should cause you pain, remember there are some things about which there is no question, the elemental facts of right and wrong. Shall I tell you sister and Mr. Astley that we are ready to go?" Rising to his feet, he signed to the others.

"I am terribly sorry to break up the party," he said, "but I think Mademoiselle Toni is very tired." Ravel, once the door of his apartment was shut behind him, did not attempt to go to bed. Instead, he went into his studio, threw off his dress coat changing into an old painting overall, and sat down before his wood fire.

Ravel now had little doubt that Greta was guilty. Her behavior at the theatre, in addition to the strange suspicion that Giga's words had aroused, had swept away the hesitation that had been tormenting him. As he had said to Toni, he was used, like all great artists, to looking past the masks that people wore for faces, to their very souls, and in the soul of Greta he had read something that even she herself did not know was visible to the outer world—Fear. A constant, nagging, unceasing fear. He realized that if Giga had not spoken so definitely he might not easily have had his suspicious awakened, but now everything seemed to point to the one thing; yet he dared not, must not make a false step. He could not openly accuse her, yet in some way, if she were guilty, Staire must and should be freed. The only possibility, the only imaginable thing was that she must be made to betray herself—yet how?

Hours later, when the winter daylight was creeping over Paris, Ravel still sat in the armchair, watching the dead ashes with eyes that saw only the face of the man he knew to be innocent and the eyes of the child he was painting. What to do.... and how to do it?

France Bars Her

Elizabeth Hawes, well-known American modiste, was banned from France, where she attempted to compete with French style-makers.

She is the first American girl to attempt to introduce American styles in France.

MALMO, Sweden — Sweden's "white coal"—its enormous supply of water power—furnishes nearly all light, heat and power in the country, and it also comprises a part of Sweden's invisible export. Thus more than 31,000,000 kilowatts are sent by submarine cable to Denmark.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — James McCallum has filed with Army officials here a novel claim for damages. He says that during the Army air maneuvers last May the vibration of the hundreds of planes participating caused a ceiling of his home to collapse.

PARIS, Tenn. — A timber rattlesnake, seldom found in this country, wearing six rattles and measuring 47 inches in length, was killed here recently.

Today's Pattern

In the summer, formal frocks are more versatile than they are at any other time of the year. Dressing up in strictly evening frocks is often too much of an undertaking in hot weather, so we wear cool frocks like this one. Without the cape collar, it would be a charmingly simple evening gown. With the cape collar it becomes an ideal frock for summer evening dances, but also a frock one may wear in the daytime, for afternoon teas or bridge parties. Organdie is a crisp becoming material in which to make it, but chiffon, georgette, eyelet embroidered cotton, or sheer batiste would be equally well. Pattern 2178 is stunning over a dark slip.

Obtainable only in sizes 13, 14, 16, 18, 20, 31, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 requires 5 yards of 39 inch material. Yardsage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

OHIO TEACHERS MEET AUG. 4-7

C. F. Christian to Speak at Wooster Experiment Station Gathering

Ohio high school vocational agriculture teachers will meet at Wooster Aug. 4 to 7 to discuss means for improving the agricultural situation in the state through better training for farmers.

Walter Newman, of Richmond, Virginia state supervisor of agricultural education, will be the principal speaker. His topic will be "The Organization of Part-Time and Evening Courses in Agriculture." Other speakers will include C. F. Christian of Salem; J. R. Alley, Columbus, manager of the Ohio Livestock Cooperative association; G. G. Williams, director of the Experiment station at Wooster; L. L. Rummel, of the Ohio Farmer and John Grierson of Hillsboro.

The staff at the Experiment station has scheduled 56 meetings for teachers during the four in which discussions of the newer developments in technical agriculture and the application of experimental findings to present farm needs will be discussed.

The week's program will include a visit to Cleveland to study livestock marketing and visits to the homes of Alva and Grant Ramseyer, Wayne county master farmers; the W. J. Buss poultry farm, and the Melrose orchard at Wooster.

The conference was arranged through the cooperation of the Ohio State Department of Education, the Agricultural Education Department of Ohio State university, and the Experiment station.

Illusions of Coolness

"And what is so cool as a block of ice?" rang out Dot, cheerily, from the dining room where she was busy giving the last touches to the table laid for a formal dinner. It was a scorchingly hot day—the worst possible day Jack could have selected to bring home some unexpected visitors, she pointed out, but that being the case, the best she could do was to make it seem cooler.

Cool Illusions
Instead of a heavy formal linen cloth, there were a few square lace doilies at each place. A minimum of china and silver was used, so that the table showed a pleasant expanse of bare, polished wood. In the center was a clear block of ice set in a bed of large ferns and a few carnations — both beautiful and cooling to behold.

When days are so warm that the revolving fan must be kept going, and even that doesn't seem enough — then let the eye help in establishing illusions of coolness. One way is to dispose of all excess furniture and decorative items, about the house. A clutter of objects always adds to a sense of warmth—which is coziness in winter, but depressingly warm in summer.

Bare woods look cooler than any draperies, and the fewer the draperies over furniture and windows the better. For the table service, glassware is a great aid to a cooling service, and now one can obtain all the items for both formal or informal service in glassware—plates, bowls, platters, cups, and so on. Pale amber glassware set in a lace doily service, with perhaps a slim glass vase of flowers as a centerpiece, will make any room seem cooler than it actually is.

Furniture that can be stripped for summer, instead of swathed in all-over slips will look cooler. And can bare modernistic chairs of metal and leather are summery in appearance — whatever they may feel like!

China's War Lord

Reported to be urging the insurgent Cantonese Government to join forces with his armies for a united war against Japan, General Chiang Kai-shek (above), President of the Nationalist Government of China, has offered to relinquish his office and lead the united Chinese armies in the offensive along the Korean border. The insurgent Canton Government was established principally for the overthrow of President Kai-shek.

68-Ton Whale From Pacific To Be Exhibited In Salem

Shades of Moby Dick and all other departed whales! Sixty-eight tons of quivering blubber and bone, a massive load even for the reinforced freight car which bears the burden, will roll into Salem, Thursday, July 30, on probably the strangest trip ever made by a whale.

It is the Pacific Whaling company's exhibit of a biological curiosity, the largest finback whale ever captured, and it comes to this city for a stay of two days.

Fifty-five feet in length, more than 12 feet thick from side to side and probably 14 feet high when in natural waters of the Pacific, the huge body bulks large in the casing built for it on the car.

When the whale was lifted from the water off the coast of southern California, it took three weeks' steady work to embalm the huge bulk and prepare it for its long tour by land. Constant attention of 10 men is required to see that the strain of traveling does not detract from its appearance.

More than 5,100 gallons of embalming fluid were used in the process of getting the whale ready for traveling. The mammal is in an excellent state of preservation.

It was captured last year after a battle of hours, brought on when the first bomb harpoon fired into its body failed to reach a vital spot.

It was a thrilling fight for the crew of the little boat which undertook capture of the huge mammal, for at times, propelled by mighty strokes of its huge tail, powerful as a ship's propeller, it would swim at the rate of more than 40 miles an hour through the blue water of the Pacific.

The whale will be on exhibition

The above photograph shows a whale, similar to the one which will be exhibited in Salem Thursday, lashed to the vessel after capture. There's lots of room on top of it.

their lives as their over-laden plane failed to rise at the end of the runway and almost crashed into a hangar and telegraph poles. They were forced to dump half of their gasoline to gain altitude to save themselves from crashing.

Although their plane has a slower cruising speed than the "Winnie Mae," Herndon and Pangborn hope to beat the round-the-world record by flying longer distances. They have dual controls.

Their monoplane is orange-red hued.

Herndon was educated at Princeton and learned flying in France. He has been refused a license in this country because of color-blindness. He will act as navigator on the trip, having studied under Capt. Lewis Vancey. Herndon's mother is Mrs. Dixon Boardman, society woman of Park avenue. Herndon's secret marriage was revealed a week ago.

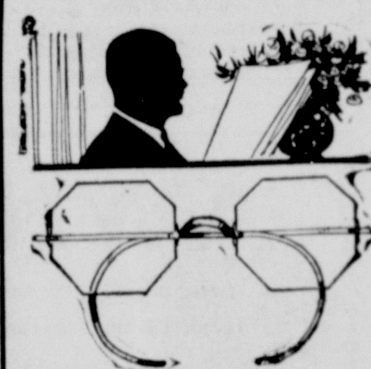

Pangborn, his flying mate, was the first aviator to fly a plane upside down. His record shows more than 1,200 hours in the air. He is from Wenatchee, Wash.

Will Drop Message

Boardman is from Boston. He is 33 years old and has been flying since he was 23. His co-pilot, Polando, is 27, married and works for the East Coast Aircraft, Boston. His home is in Lynn, Mass.

They have 17 small parachutes with which to drop messages as they pass over important points enroute to Turkey.

In Australia have been found fragments of a young woman who lived when "human beings still were attempting to walk erect and talk articulately."

Hers is "the most primitive complete human skull ever discovered." The back of the skull, you will be sorry to hear, "resembles that of an anthropoid ape."

The lady who lived, perhaps, when Australia was not yet separated from the continent, had a brain cavity about half that of a modern human being.

COURT NEWS

Judgment has been entered in favor of the plaintiff for $350 and costs on a cognovit note in an action filed by Mary M. Frail against John and Eliza Stanley.

A motion to set aside an order for the appointment of a receiver and a motion to punish for contempt has been assigned for trial before Judge W. F. Lones, Aug. 3, in the case of Louis Jameson and others against Nick Jameson, doing business as the Busy Bee restaurant, East Liverpool. In this case James Arkideau has been made a party defendant.

Certifies Applications
Common pleas court has certified to probate court the applications for probating wills in the matter of the estate of the late Sara L. Filson and William Clapsdale. In doing this, the lower court will have to do with the making of any further orders in either instance.

In the case of Albert I. McLean of East Liverpool against Not Moll, doing business as the Terminal Taxi Cab Co., at East Liverpool, an action for damages and an injunction, the court has granted leave to the defendant to answer by Aug. 15.

Leave has been granted Charles Black, Lloyd Black and Nellie Black to file their answer on or before Aug. 8 in the case filed against them by the State of Ohio on relation of Louise Thornton.

Because issues between the plaintiff Jessie L. Ray and Raymond and Iva Long as defendants have been settled out of court, the case has been dismissed by Judge Lones without prejudice as to the defendants. Costs are to be paid by the plaintiff.

Motion Overruled
A motion to vacate a judgment, has been overruled by the court in the case of George S. Peltz against Christie and Pearl Zelle. In this case a jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff May 4 last for $427.04. Exceptions have been entered for the defendants.

In the case asking a restraining order and other equitable relief filed by Jay V. Rice against W. J. Barlow as sheriff and others, leave has been granted the defendants to plead on or before Aug. 1.

An order in proceedings in aid of execution has been entered in the case of F. S. Borton and others against Allen Greiner.

In the appeal action filed in the case of Wallace P. Fogo & Son against Hamilton Carpenter, leave has been granted the plaintiff to file their petition on or before Aug. 3.

Judgment by default in favor of the plaintiff has been entered in the foreclosure action filed by the Federal Land bank of Louisville, Ky., against Grace M. Walter and others. A judgment for $3,147.94 and costs has been entered against Grace M. Walter, John G. Houlette as administrator, and the Columbiana County National Farm board.

Judgment has also been entered on a cross petition in favor of Nannie L. Brown and others for $4,188.60 and costs. Priority of liens have been determined, and a decree foreclosing the mortgage and an order of sale has been made in the record.

Judgment For $52
Motion for a new trial has been overruled in the case of Frank S. Dowd against John S. Laughlin and a judgment has been entered on a verdict for $52 and costs.

A motion to confirm a sale has been sustained in the partition action filed by Harvey H. Lamomcha against Edna Lamomcha and others with objections to confirmation overruled. A deed has been ordered and a decree of distribution according to a written opinion has been entered by the court.

In two actions filed by S. I. Morley against the Salem China Co., the court has granted leave to the defendant to file answers on or before Aug. 15.

Motion for a new trial has been overruled in the damage action filed by Charles Husband against the Pennzoil Co., wherein the plaintiff won a verdict for $5,000 as a result of an automobile accident. Judgment has been entered on the verdict.

The injunction action filed by J. W. and Margery Garey against Adam J. Frischkorn has been dismissed on motion of the plaintiff and at their costs without further record.

Judgment by default for $637.16 and costs has been entered in the attachment action filed by Anna M. Lenning against the Efficiency Electric Co. An order for the sale of the attached property has been made by the court.

M'GARVEY CASE MAY BE DELAYED

September Term of Court Scheduled to Act In Ingledue Shooting

LISBON, July 28.—Thomas McGarvey, Hanover township farmer who was indicted for second degree murder in the shooting of Walter Ingledue, April 23, will probably not go to trial again on this indictment until the September term of court.

The new term opens Sept. 7. Judge W. F. Lones was brief in his decision Monday granting the new trial, saying:

"The motion for a new trial is sustained on error in the charge on the question of self defense, on authority of Martin v. State, 26, Ohio State reports, page 162 and Ohio v. Sheets, 115 Ohio State reports, page 308. A new trial is granted."

When the motion for a new trial was argued by Atty. George T. Farrell, who was associated with Atty. Charles C. Connell in the defense of this case, the argument was based solely upon the charge of the court.

street, East Liverpool, is asked in a petition filed against him by The J. A. Anderson Co., Louis and George J. Jameson.

The property is valued in the petition at $4,000 and the court has set a bond at $1,000 but has not yet appointed a receiver. Jameson owes Louis Jameson $1,620; George Jameson $1,680 and the Anderson company $150. The petition for the plaintiffs has been filed by Attorney William S. Foukis.

Seek $232.70 Judgment
The Lisbon Milling Co., through its counsel, Charles C. Connell, has filed suit in common pleas court against Lilla and John S. Laughlin to recover a judgment for $232.70 claimed to be owing as a balance on an account for merchandise.

Divorce Actions
George Rouse has been cited to appear before Judge W. F. Lones and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. His wife Mabel Rouse obtained a divorce from him when the case was heard by Judge Wilkins recently, and at that time Rouse was ordered to pay his wife $100 as alimony. The decree was entered June 29 last, and the case had been pending since Nov. 6, last year.

In the case asking a restraining order and other equitable relief against her husband, Lowry J. Wilson, 1015 Pennsylvania avenue, East Liverpool, they were married at New Cumberland, W. Va., June 21, 1926.

On June 10, Wilson, according to the petition, told his wife he would not support her and had the gas and electric current shut from their apartment. The plaintiff seeks a decree and restoration to her maiden name, Iona Dales.

WILLAMAN FACES JOB
16 LETTERMEN RETURN
FACE BEARCATS OCT. 3

SAMUEL SEBASTIAN WILLAMAN, Salem's favorite son of the gridiron, is in a tough spot where Ohio State university football prospects are concerned this year. Minus such stars as Wesley Fessler, Richard Larkins, Lawrence Fried, Bob Horn, Sam Selby and other 1931 regulars, the Buckeye mentor starts preparations in less than two months time for the toughest gridiron schedule ever arranged for the Scarlet and White.

Ninety players are on Sam's list of grid prospects. Forty-four of this number come in the "questionable" class, have been untried except in "scrub" and freshmen activities; 16 were lettermen last year. Of the lettermen back, the majority won their varsity awards through utility work and thereby have this taste of woe. On these 16, however, and the few coming up from the freshmen ranks, depends the future of the grid machine.

The Scarlet and Gray opens its schedule on October 3, playing the Cincinnati Bearcats who will have in their lineup Ed and Clarence Sidinger. Another Salem product, Robert Van Blaricom, will probably break into the lineup also, and this game, as should many others on the Ohio State schedule, should hold much interest for Quaker city fandom.

Vanderbilt, one of the strongest teams in the south, will play Ohio October 10. Then Michigan, co-holder of the Big Ten title, will be met the following week at Ann Arbor with Northwestern, the other co-holder, in Columbus the week after that, Oct. 24.

A pre-season survey indicates plenty of work ahead for Willaman and his corps of assistants. Losses through graduation and other causes, while not unusually large, are of such a caliber as to cause many a wrinkled brow on the Buckeye campus.

With the season weeks away, Joe Benis of Cleveland appears to have the best prospects of replacing Fessler as a field general, although Willaman will endeavor to develop a sophomore quarterback with an eye to the future. Benis will be playing his last season this fall.

Strenuous efforts must be put forth by the Buckeye coaching staff to build up the passing and kicking department, vacated by Fessler and Horn. A number of men have prospects of fulfilling the passing requirements while John Fugitt of Portsmouth, Robert Haubrich of Columbus and Jerome Fisher of Cleveland have the inside track, for the punting assignments.

Spaldings Official Football Guide, edited by E. K. Hall, chairman of the rules committee, again makes its annual appearance in midsummer so that coaches and players may have the opportunity to study the revised playing code before fall practice begins.

The only change of importance in the rules for 1931 has to do with penalties for fouls which may be committed during the try-for-point after touchdown.

The former method of awarding or forfeiting the additional point when a foul was committed during the "try" will no longer be used and Rule 9, Section 3, Article 2, specifies that the usual penalty, distance, etc. (as provided elsewhere in the rules), shall be enforced if a foul occur during the "try."

The special note under Rule 5, Section 3, which deals with head protectors, jerseys or attachments of a color similar to the ball, has been made mandatory instead of being merely a suggestion, as was the case last year.

Several changes in phraseology also have been made which do not in any sense alter the meaning and intent of the rules, but which it is hoped will further clarify and simplify the code.

The Guide retains all the departments that have made it the recognized authority of the game, and includes schedules for 1931, list of officials, scores, reviews, best-on-record list of individual accomplishments and the annually revised compilations that record the outstanding achievements in years gone by.

STRATTON LOSES FIRST FALL IN 47 MINUTE TILT

Double-arm Stretch again Used by Chick to Score In Gruelling Fray

BUCHWALTER HELD TO DRAW BY TAYLOR

Warren Wrestling Coach Fails to Win for 1st Time In Youngstown

Walter Stratton, Leetonia strong boy and possessor of an enviable record of victories in the wrestling racket, met his match for the second time at Idora park, Youngstown, Monday night, losing to Robert Chick, veteran rasser from Houston, Tex., in the season's most thrilling match.

Texan Wins First Fall
Billed for a two out of three fall contest with one hour limit, the grapplers were able to perform for only two falls, the first being won by the Texan after 47 minutes of terrific mauling while the second ended in the draw when the time limit was reached.

It was a night when all the thrills of legalized assault and battery of the wrestling ring reigned supreme. George Buchwalter of Warren, wrestling coach at Western Reserve university, and Frankie Taylor, Houston, Tex., battled to a draw in another furious fracas while George Kappas, Youngstown, defeated Frankie Landers, Alliance, in a one-fall prelim.

Plenty of Rough Stuff
There was a two out of three fall between the Buchwalter-Taylor scrap and the Stratton-Chick battle for sensations, both bouts being among the best staged by Al Zill, Mahoning county's leading ring impresario. There was all the rough and tumble rassing the blood-thirsty desired and there was plenty of good wrestling.

Stratton and Chick battled back and forth on even terms for 40 minutes in the first fall of the finale until the Leetonia youth obtained an edge by several head butts and apparently had his opponent on the verge of a fall. Chick, suddenly recuperating, slugged Stratton three times in the jaw with his elbow, grappled the Leetonia's arms and pinned him to the canvas with a double arm stretch, the same hold he used in winning from the latter two weeks ago.

Each grappler had to summon assistance before he was able to leave the ring. Chick falling prostrate on his face after winning the fall while Stratton stayed on the canvas, apparently almost unconscious.

Stratton Misses Chances
The second fall last only the 13 remaining minutes but it was packed full of thrills. Stratton muffed several opportunities to earn a draw when he failed to follow up advantages, the veteran and more crafty Chick eeling out of difficult holds time after time. Buchwalter won his first fall from Taylor after 20 minutes with a body scissors and arm lock but the Texan, Chick's stablemate, came back to give the Reserve mentor plenty of punishment and take the third fall in 26 minutes.

The third session was the real thriller when Buchwalter opened up with rough tactics and attempted to hurl his more youthful antagonist out of the squared circle. Failing in this he butted him with his head but still failed to throw Taylor, who held a slight edge in this fall.

Kappas and Landers put on a more clean bout than the featured artists, the veteran Greek having it on the youthful Alliance lad in weight and experience.

MULLINS OUTFIT AGAIN LEADS IN MUSHBALL LOOP

Foremen's Club Piles Up 15-2 Victory; Pottery Trounces Cigars

Mullins mushballers continued to set the pace in the Salem softball league pennant race, pounding out a 15-2 victory over the Harold Cox Studios in a one-sided fracas at Centennial park field Monday.

The Foremen's club holds a one-half game edge over the Salem China company team which last night took undisputed possession of second place by drubbing the United Cigars, 10-1. The Pottery and Cigars had previously been tied for the runner-up post.

Mullins had three big innings, scoring six in the first, three in the second and five in the fourth. Jimmy Fitzpatrick and Judy Myers each clubbed out four hits out of five times up.

Frank Scullion pelted out three safeties in as many trips to the plate and passed Cecil Scullion in the league individual batting race.

The Pottery had little trouble annihilating the Cigars, locating Miller's offering for 13 safeties.

PITTSBURGH TAKES ROLE OF VILLAIN IN LEAGUE TITLE RACE

(By Associated Press)
Going nowhere in particular themselves, Jewel En's Pittsburgh Pirates apparently have decided to assume their customary late-season role—trouble makers for the rest of the National league.

Win Fifth Straight
Just a month ago the Pirates had won 23 games and lost 38. Since then they have won 19 games out of 29 for the quite respectable percentage of .655. They won their fifth straight victory yesterday, wallowing the third place New York Giants, 8 to 6, although outhit, 14 to 10.

The second place Chicago Cubs fell eight and one-half games behind St. Louis when they accepted a 7-6 beating from the Phillies. Home runs by Buzz Arlett and Pinkey Whitney, each with a man on the base, furnished the Phils with a lead the Cubs couldn't overcome.

Other National league clubs had a day off.

A's Defeat Browns
The American league situation remained unchanged as the Philadelphia Athletics nosed out the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4 on Eric McNair's tenth inning home run. Rube Walberg chalked up his 16th victory of the year.

The Washington Senators won a free-hitting game from Cleveland, 11-7. Joe Kuhel's two doubles and a single driving in three Senator runs.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeannette Young Norton

Crab and Lobster Salad

To many persons the fine flavor of crab and lobster is perceptible only when these shellfish are served cold. Hence, the popularity of these fish in salad form. And from the cook's standpoint this preference has its advantages too. For broiled or boiled lobster must be served piping hot, direct from stove to table, if it is served that way at all. Lukewarmness in these dishes is one of the culinary crimes.

But it should also be remembered that too much flavor in the dressing will obliterate flavor too, and so all seasonings are better used sparingly. Strong flavors like mustard, onion and vinegar don't belong with crab and lobster. Just a dash of salt, a very mild, lemon-tinted mayonnaise, or whipped cream blend best.

Crabmeat or Lobster Salad

2 cups flaked meat
1 cup diced celery
1/2 cup diced green peppers
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1/2 cup salad dressing
2 hard cooked eggs

Mix together the flaked meat and vegetables with the dressing. Pile on crisp lettuce leaves, garnish with sliced eggs or use sliced tomatoes, or sliced stuffed olives as garnish. Instead of using a boiled dressing, slightly salted whipped cream may be mixed with the fish and vegetables. Or it may be mixed—half dressing and half whipped cream.

Keep on ice—and if there are only four persons or fewer to be served the salad can be arranged on individual plates, and kept on ice until needed. Very often a large well-chilled salad is a bit spoiled, because by the time it is transferred from the large cold bowl to the individual plates on the table it absorbs the warmth of room and plates. Unless the thoughtful cook will keep empty salad plates on ice to chill also.

Assassin Foiled

Luck was with Sir John Hotson (above), Governor of Bombay, India, when a bullet fired at him by a student was deflected by the metal clasp of the wallet which he carried in a pocket over his heart. The Governor overpowered the youth, who was found to be in possession of a second loaded pistol. The attack occurred while Sir John was inspecting Ferguson College, at Poona.

MOVIES

"THE PUBLIC ENEMY"
At The Grand

James Cagney, a newcomer to the screen gives one of the finest portrayals of the year in "Public Enemy," feature at the Grand today. As Tom Powers, gang chief, he is splendid.

"The Public Enemy" is more than a story of crime and its leaders. It strips the criminal of all glamor. It paints him as he is—the monster in human form who appears in many disguises—but always with the mania for money.

The cast as a whole was splendidly well chosen. Edward Woods, as Cagney's buddy, comes second in rank, while Donald Cook, as the honest brother, gives a very forceful performance. Joan Blondell, Beryl Mercer, Leslie Fenton, Jean Harlow, Mae Clark, Rita Flynn and many others are amongst those prominent in the cast. Junior Coghlan and Frankie Darro portray the gangsters in the childhood sequences.

"THE NIGHT ANGEL"
At The State

"The Night Angel" is at the State theater tonight.

Nancy Carroll and Fredric March play the leading roles in this colorful romance drama. Miss Carroll is seen as the young daughter of a broken-down countess. She is an entertainer in the cabaret which her mother owns and which is the bane of the legal forces of the city. March as a prospering young lawyer, becomes city prosecutor and decides to close up the countess' pleasure resort as his first step in reforming the town. The result is a conflict of personalities, attended by much action and suspense—and finally becalmed by the realization of true love.

This is the second picture in which Miss Carroll and March have appeared together. They were the stars of "Laughter."
